When there is there is a disease that threatens life, it's the duty of the CDC to fight it. Some of the diseases that they have to go up against are extremely dangerous and threaten all of life if it's left unchecked. A new and deadly virus has come to the attention of the CDC that has the potential of killing everyone if they can't find the cure. As the CDC goes to fight this virus, they find themselves on a remote island that is inhabited by a cult that has cut themselves off from the rest of the world. Though this cult might have good intentions for a perfect society but will their good intentions lead to death or is there something else going on here that the CDC don't know about?
