PG-13

I'll be the first to admit that the box office this summer is looking incredibly weak: Sex & The City 2 performed well under what it could have (if it wasn't terrible, which it is), and popcorn-induced action movies have been handed to us in the form of the underrated A-Team and the incredibly horrible Jonah Hex. Will we soon see a movie that is not only worth our $10.50, but also has us begging for more? Well, the answer is as clear as Knight & Day.
